Curriculum planning
Our curriculum is based on the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) from the United Kingdom adapted to meet the needs and culture of our children and families here in Hong Kong. We also have a strong influence from Reggio Emilia and Inquiry Approach that is integrated into our teaching and learning style. We integrate our school-based Chinese Life Education and Logical Thinking Mathematics curriculum in our program. The teaching language of the school is mainly English and Putonghua, and Cantonese option is also available.
Learning / Teaching approach & activities
MAGART emphasizes the importance of whole-child development. Our teaching method is inspired and influenced by the Reggio Emilia Approach and Inquiry-Based Learning. By creating an open and spacious learning environment, we encourage and guides children to establish positive relationships with teachers and peers. By exploring fun, engaging activities, children are trained to become independent learners. MAGART aims to develop and cultivate children's learning ability, creativity, communication, and independent thinking through a variety of teaching methods, such as inquiry-based learning, project discussion, thematic teaching etc. We provide an open space for children to explore various activities in a comfortable and spacious environment. In order to meet the needs and interests of children, we arrange different outings and activities every year, so that children can learn from personal experience. We also provide children with a suitable learning environment where they can actively learn in a safe and happy environment.
Assessment of children's learning experiences
Students' portfolios with periodic observations made by the teachers. Theme assessments and evaluations. Videos and photos kept as a reference. Developmental reports twice per year. Meetings with parents to discuss overall progress.
