Curriculum Details

Curriculum type : Local

Curriculum planning

The child-centered curriculum is designed in accordance with development needs of children. Its contents integrated with life experiences and interests with diversified activities such as inquiry-based science, theater, music, affective education, creative art activities, so as to foster balanced development of children. It also regularly reviews the relevance of the curriculum and provides multi-sensory learning to encourage exploration, thus improving children's skills in message processing and problem-solving.

We will follow the "Kindergarten Education Curriculum Guide" (2017) to plan curriculum. Children of nursery classes will not be asked to write, and there will not be mechanical copying exercises and drills on calculation.

Learning / Teaching approach & activities

As learning focuses on personal exploration and creative, it brings children out of classroom to participate in community activities such as tours and visits and so on. Classroom learning includes teaching, project learning, individual and group learning, and music activities using Orff musical ideas, together with foreign teachers teaching English. Other activities include Hong Kong Scout and hobby classes etc.

Assessment of children's learning experiences

The establishment of learning portfolios and development reports keep records on all aspects of early childhood development for continuous and summative assessment.
